Good Morning All,

The new One Bread, One Body booklet is available for free in the Narthex. Make sure to get your copy.

Knights of Columbus will be collecting after all Masses this weekend any goodies you may want to donate to their ongoing yard sale. Contact the office if you need help with any large furniture pieces - we will get the message to them!

Weekly Bulletin attached.

1. Today's Readings: <https://bible.usccb.org/bible/readings/073121.cfm>

2. The RE Corner with Jan Heithaus: St. Ignatius of Loyola is the founder of the Society of Jesus, also known as the Jesuits. The Jesuits have been immersed in education since the time of their founder. St. Ignatius is also well known for his Ignatian exercises and the rules of spiritual discernment. An upcoming email will give more information about these topics, so stay tuned!

3. Quotes of the Day: Wise words from St. Ignatius of Loyola

~ "After you have made a decision that is pleasing to God, the devil may try to make you have second thoughts. Intensify your prayer time, meditation, and good deeds. For if Satan's temptations merely cause you to increase your efforts to grow in holiness, he will have an incentive to leave you alone."

~ "If you want to be of use to others, begin by taking pains with yourself: the fire that is to enkindle others should be lighted at home."

~ "Let us work as if success depended upon ourselves alone, but with heartfelt conviction that we are doing nothing, and God everything."

St. Ignatius of Loyola, Pray for Us!

St. Joseph, Pray for Us!

Stay hydrated! Cooler days (but still hot) are coming!

St. Ignatius Loyola

Born Inigo Lopez de Loyola in 1491, the man known as Ignatius of Loyola entered the world in Loliola, Spain. At the time, the name of the village was spelled "Loyola," hence the discrepancy. Inigo came of age in Azpeitia, in northern Spain. Loyola is a small village at the southern end of Azpeitia.

Inigo was the youngest of thirteen children. His mother died when he was just seven, and he was then raised by Maria de Garin, who was the wife of a blacksmith. His last name, "Loyola" was taken from the village of his birth.

Despite the misfortune of losing his mother he was still a member of the local aristocracy and was raised accordingly. Inigo was an ambitious young man who had dreams of becoming a great leader. He was influenced by stories such as The Song of Roland and El Cid.

At the age of sixteen, he began a short period of employment working for Juan Velazquez, the treasurer of Castile. By the time he was eighteen, he became a soldier and would fight for Antonio Manrique de Lara, Duke of Najera and Viceroy of Navarre.

Seeking wider acclaim, he began referring to himself as Ignatius. Ignatius was a variant of Inigo. The young Ignatius also gained a reputation as a duelist. According to one story, he killed a Moor with whom he argued about the divinity of Jesus.

Ignatius fought in several battles under the leadership of the Duke of Najera. He had a talent for emerging unscathed, despite participating in many battles. His talent earned him promotions and soon he commanded his own troops.

In 1521, while defending the town of Pamplona against French attack, Ignatius was struck by a cannonball in the legs. One leg was merely broken, but the other was badly mangled. To save his life and possibly his legs, doctors performed several surgeries. There were no anesthetics during this time, so each surgery was painful.

Despite their best efforts, Ignatius' condition deteriorated. After suffering for a month, his doctors warned him to prepare for death.

On June 29, 1521, on the feast of Saints Peter and Paul, Ignatius began to improve. As soon as he was healthy enough to bear it, part of one leg was amputated which while painful, sped his recovery.

During this time of bodily improvement, Ignatius began to read whatever books he could find. Most of the books he obtained were about the lives of the saints and Christ. These stories had a profound impact on him, and he became more devout.

One story in particular influenced him, "De Vita Christi" (The life of Christ). The story offers commentary on the life of Christ and suggested a spiritual exercise that required visualizing oneself in the presence of Christ during the episodes of His life. The book would inspire Ignatius' own spiritual exercises.

As he lay bedridden, Ignatius developed a desire to become a working servant of Christ. He especially wanted to convert non-Christians.

Among his profound realizations, was that some thoughts brought him happiness and others sorrow. When he considered the differences between these thoughts, he recognized that two powerful forces were acting upon him. Evil brought him unpleasant thoughts while God brought him happiness. Ignatius discerned God's call, and began a new way of life, following God instead of men.

By the spring of 1522, Ignatius had recovered enough to leave bed. On March 25, 1522, he entered the Benedictine monastery, Santa Maria de Montserrat. Before an image of the Black Madonna, he laid down his military garments. He gave his other clothes away to a poor man.

He then walked to a hospital in the town of Manresa. In exchange for a place to live, he performed work around the hospital. He begged for his food. When he was not working or begging, he would go into a cave and practice spiritual exercises. His time in prayer and contemplation helped him to understand himself better. He also gained a better understanding of God and God's plan for him.

The ten months he spent between the hospital and the cavern were difficult for Ignatius. He suffered from doubts, anxiety and depression. But he also recognized that these were not from God.

Ignatius began recording his thoughts and experiences in a journal. This journal would be useful later for developing new spiritual exercises for the tens of thousands of people who would follow him. Those exercises remain invaluable today and are still widely practiced by religious and laity alike.

The next year, in 1523, Ignatius made a pilgrimage to the Holy Land. His goal was to live there and convert non-believers. However, the Holy Land was a troubled place and Church officials did not want Ignatius to complicate things further. They asked him to return after just a fortnight.

Ignatius realized he needed to obtain a complete education if he wanted to convert people. Returning to Barcelona, Ignatius attended a grammar school, filled with children, to learn Latin and other beginning subjects. He was blessed with a great teacher during this time, Master Jeronimo Ardevol.

After completing his primary education, Ignatius traveled to Alcala, then Salamanca, where he studied at universities. In addition to studying, Ignatius often engaged others in lengthy conversations about spiritual matters.

These conversations attracted the attention of the Inquisition.

In Spain, the Inquisition was responsible for ferreting out religious dissent and combating heresy. The Inquisition was not as it has long been depicted in the media.

The Inquisition accused Ignatius of preaching without any formal education in theology. Without this training, it was likely that Ignatius could introduce heresy by way of conversation and misunderstanding.

Ignatius was questioned three times by the Inquisition, but he was always exonerated.

Ignatius eventually decided he needed more education, so he traveled north, seeking better schools and teachers. He was 38 years old when he entered the College of Saint Barbe of the University of Paris. This education was very structured and formalized. Later, Ignatius would be inspired to copy this model when establishing schools. The ideas of prerequisites and class levels would arise from the Jesuit schools, which were heavily inspired by Ignatius' experience in Paris.

Ignatius earned a master's degree at the age of 44. When he subsequently applied for his doctorate, he was passed over because of his age. He also suffered from ailments, which the school was concerned could impact his studies.

While at school in Paris, Ignatius roomed with Peter Faber and Francis Xavier. Faber was French and Xavier was Basque. The men became friends and Ignatius led them in his spiritual exercises. Other men soon joined their exercises and became followers of Ignatius. The group began to refer to themselves as "Friends in the Lord," an apt description.

The circle of friends, shared Ignatius' dream of traveling to the Holy Land, but conflict between Venice and the Turks made such a journey impossible. Denied the opportunity to travel there, the group then decided to visit Rome. There, they resolved to present themselves to the Pope and to serve at his pleasure.

Pope Paul III received the group and approved them as an official religious order in 1540. The band attempted to elect Ignatius as their first leader, but he declined, saying he had not lived a worthy life in his youth. He also believed others were more experienced theologically.

The group insisted however, and Ignatius accepted the role as their first leader. They called themselves the Society of Jesus. Some people who did not appreciate their efforts dubbed them "Jesuits" in an attempt to disparage them. While the name stuck, by virtue of their good work the label lost its negative connotation.

Ignatius imposed a strict, almost military rule on his order. This was natural for a man who spent his youth as a soldier. It might be expected that such rigor would dissuade people from joining, but it had the opposite effect. The order grew.

The Society of Jesus soon found its niche in education. Before Ignatius died in 1556, his order established 35 schools and boasted 1,000 members. The order was responsible for much of the work of stopping the spread of the Protestant Reformation. The Society advocated the use of reason to persuade others and combat heresy.

Today, the Society of Jesus is known for its work in educating the youth around the world. Several universities have been founded in the name of Ignatius and in the traditional Jesuit spirit. The Jesuits also perform many other important works around the globe.

Ignatius' passed away on July 31, 1556, at the age of 64. He was beatified by Pope Paul V on July 27, 1609, and canonized on March 12, 1622. His feast day is July 31. He is the patron saint of the Society of Jesus, soldiers, educators and education.

SAINT WHO?

Saints Who Served in Times of Plague and Pandemic

This week we continue to share timely articles from the Magnificat about Saints who Served in Times of Plague and Pandemic. The publishers of Magnificat have given us permission to share these articles previously published in their January Magnificat.

Saint Gregory the Great

Pope and Doctor (+604)

Feast: September 3

Gregory's parents were Silvia, who is also venerated as a saint, and Gordianus, a wealthy Roman patrician. In his early thirties, Gregory rose to the post of prefect of the city of Rome. Before long, he left it all for a monastery he founded on the city's Caelian Hill. He served in the monastery, in diaconal ministry to the city of Rome, and as an ambassador to the Byzantine court in Constantinople before his election as pope in 590.

In that moment, Rome faced a dire situation. A flood of the Tiber River had brought famine and pestilence in its wake. Pope Pelagius II had died from the plague in February that year. Before his papal consecration Gregory called for processions beginning in each of the seven districts of the city and ending at the basilica of the Blessed Virgin. According to tradition, Gregory saw a vision of the Archangel Michael sheathing his sword above the Mausoleum of Hadrian—a sign that the plague had ended.

This was but the beginning of Gregory's fourteen-year hugely popular Book of Pastoral Rule, a standard work that has guided pastors, especially bishops for many centuries now. He promoted monasticism and the evangelization of England. And by seeking peace with the invading Lombards and befriending the Franks and the Visigoths, Gregory helped secure the Church's long-term political position.

Always concerned with humility, he reckoned himself "the servant of the servants of God." Gregory died around the age of sixty-five. Gregorian chant takes its name from him.

Loving Father, through the intercession of Saint Gregory the Great, keep me within the sheepfold.

St. Joseph Catholic Church & School

St. Joseph's Lady's Rosary Guild

Love for Our Lady is shown in our life in many different ways. The Holy Rosary is one way and has been the Marian prayer most recommended by the church down through the ages. In it, Our Lady teaches us to contemplate the life of her Son, the joy of his birth, of his death on the cross, of his Glorious Resurrection and Ascension. Reciting the rosary is a continuous act of Faith, Hope, Love, Adoration, and Reparation. (J. Escriva, Holy Rosary)

Is the Blessed Mother calling you to this mission field? Come to our next meeting on August 10th in the Shook Center at 12:30 p.m. We will teach you how to make mission rosaries. If you have any questions or would like more information. Please contact: Lucy Laubshire at 864-392-1291 or lucymlaubshire@gmail.com

Save a life. Contact Congress.

WHAT

Congress is trying to force Americans to pay for abortion.

HOW

The Hyde Amendment and similar laws have protected taxpayers from funding elective abortion for 45 years. Now, powerful members of Congress want to take away these laws that both Democrats and Republicans have supported for nearly half a century.

WHAT HAPPENS WITHOUT THESE PROTECTIONS?

Billions of taxpayer dollars could be used to pay for abortion.
